Wife arrested in soldier's murder

Colorado man also charged in shooting on Fidelio Road

BY ELI PACE
NEW ERA EDITOR

The wife of a man who was found shot to death Friday night on a rural Christian County road has been charged with his murder.

Vincent Goslyn Jr., 28, died around 8:25 p.m. Friday night after being shot multiple times while he was in the 400 block of Fidelio Road, according to Chris Miller, spokesman for the Christian County Sheriff's Department. Jessie Lucille Goslyn, 25, is currently being held in the Christian County Jail with no bond on a murder charge.

Another man, Jerred Tabor Long, 24, of Grand Junction, Colo., was arrested late Saturday night or early Sunday morning in Colorado. He too is charged with murder.

Miller confirmed that the two Goslyns were married and Vincent Goslyn was a soldier at Fort Campbell.

Fort Campbell spokesman Rick Rzepka said Sunday Vincent Goslyn's relatives had not been notified. Therefore, he could only confirm the man killed was a soldier.

He was also able to confirm that neither Jessie Goslyn nor Long are in the Army. However WSMV-TV of Nashville, Tenn., reports Long was once stationed at Fort Campbell.

Miller also said that Jessie Goslyn and Long were "acquaintances," but the circumstances of their relationship are not entirely clear at this time. Authorities believe Long participated in Vincent Goslyn's murder and then drove more than 1,300 miles to Grand Junction, Colo., where he was arrested by the Colorado Fugitive Apprehension Team.

A legacy of leaders

*Phillip Brooks builds a new

He was 26 years old when he ran for, and won, a seat on the Hopkinsville City Council. Today, 20 years later, councilman and biology teacher Phillip Brooks is one in a long line of black leaders who have come from his family.

Family roots

Brooks' grandfather on his father's side attended Howard University and became a doctor. His grandmother was a founding member of Jack and Jill of America, a prominent social club for upper class African-Americans. After moving to Hopkinsville his grandfather built Brooks Memorial Hospital, which opened in 1941 as the only full-fledged hospital for minorities.

Working for the Coca-Cola Bottling Company in 1979, Walter Greene was taught how to operate the plant's bottling machine. While many black people worked in the warehouse, Greene said he was the first trained on the bottling machine.

"It was a machine that consisted of getting the right combination, the right recipe, the right formula, it had to be intact before you could make the product," Greene said. "Anything went wrong, you had to start all over again until you got it right. That's like the main part of the company right there."

Greene went on to work for Tom's Vending. In 1989, he went back to work for Coca-

Cola as the first black man locally to have the route salesman job.

Greene said he took some abuse after taking the job. Greene now works for a local manufacturer and has for the past 17 years. He has been married the past 10 years.

SOMETHING SPARKLY

Hopping down is slow going

So we're into day 11 of Hopdown the Pounds. Last time we met I told you I weighed around 150 pounds. Sunday when I stepped on the scale (which I did the second I woke up, before I devoured Super Bowl snacks for hours on end) I was 145 pounds.

I should be pretty proud right? That's a good start, five pounds in a little less than two weeks. I'm told losing two pounds a week is what's healthy, but let's be real. I don't want to BE healthy, I just want to look good. Sigh. But I suppose I should be good and aim to be healthy first and then worry about the outward appearance.

On that note I have discovered some great healthy recipies that I'd love to share. This has been my go-to recipe recently. If you don't like fish ... I'm sorry.

MONICA K. SMITH | KENTUCKY NEW ERA
Fish in Foil. This recipe has 199 calories.

4oz tilapia (as many as you like to eat)
I picked:
- portobello mushrooms
- broccoli
- carrots
- snow peas
- bell peppers (I like the yellow ones)
- cilantro
Cajun seasoning (or whatever seasoning you like just try to stay away from salt) lemon juice

Heat the oven to 375 degrees. Tear out one piece of foil per fish — I'd say about a foot and a half

New Brewgrass Trail promotes craft beer

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A Brewgrass Trail has opened in the Bluegrass.

The newly minted Brewgrass Trail was formed to highlight the state's emerging craft beer industry and includes two microbreweries in Danville, according to The Advocate-Messenger. The initiative seeks to promote the industry in a fashion similar to the way the state has marketed its more familiar bourbon products.

Adam Johnson, who is executive director of the Danville/Boyle County Convention and Visitors, said there's already a website promoting the trail, with links to social media such as Facebook and Twitter.

"Marketing to the growing 'beer tourist' segment has shown great promise and is seen in the exploding growth of breweries, specialty shops, and craft beer bars across the Bluegrass," he said. "Our hope is to make things easier for the culinary traveler to find these uniquely Kentucky beer spots with this website and social networking campaign."

So far, there are seven microbreweries listed on the website www.brewgrasstrail.com.

Those include The Beer Engine and Lore Brewing Co. in Danville as well as Country Boy Brewing in Lexington and Against The Grain Brewery and Smokehouse in Louisville.

Danville brewery owners said the city is already known for craft beer.

"The numbers seem to indicate that Danville now has more breweries per capita than any other city in the country," said Lore owner Lee Rossman. "People come from all over the country to visit Danville and stop at the breweries."

Beer Engine owner Brian Holton said, "The world of beer has been vast and complex for hundreds of years, and now the world of Kentucky beer is widening.

During the summer, Jerry Maupin and Willie Jackson used to fish under the Eggner's Ferry Bridge. If the weather was right, fish would gather around some of the large supports, and it was easy fishing.

"You could drop your line in the water, bring it back up, and you'd have a fish," Maupin said.

Now, the two won't be fishing in that location for a while.

Maupin and Jackson came out to see the damaged bridge Saturday during a viewing orchestrated by Land Between the Lakes employees. The viewing from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. was the only time the collapsed bridge will be shown to

Maj. Gen. James C. McConville offered thanks to Adams, a WWII veteran, for inviting the soldiers and for his continuing support of troops.

CRIME

Door broken, items taken in recent burglaries

A stove, two televisions, and a video game system were taken and a door was damaged in four separate burglaries recently reported to the Hopkinsville Police Department.

Wendell Green told police someone broke into his Brown Street home on Friday. The back door to the house was unlocked, dresser drawers were open and a mattress had been flipped, according to the report.

Green handles the finances for his local church, and he thought whoever broke into the home believed he kept the money there, the report states.

A stove was taken from a Durrett Avenue home, Bobby Jones told police.

The stove, valued in the report at $450, belongs to Gerald T. Johnson Jr., according to the report. It was allegedly taken sometime between Thursday and Saturday.

Someone broke a window at Harriet Boyd's East First Street home in order to get inside and steal a 32-inch TV, according to a Hopkinsville police report.

The $300 TV was reportedly taken on Friday or Saturday, the report states.

A TV and video game system were taken Friday evening from a Boyd Street home, according to a Hopkinsville police report.

Donielle Poindexter told police someone forced open her front door and ransacked her home in the process of taking the items. The "Wii Playstation" is valued at $299 and the 32-inch TV is valued at $289 in the report.

Concussion bill receives broad House support

KENTUCKY NEWS CONTENT SERVICE

State House lawmakers, in a rare show of unity, unanimously approved a bill requiring high school and middle school coaches to obtain more training to recognize and treat concussions and other head injuries.

Rep. Ben Waide, a Madisonville Republican, said new medical information has surfaced within the past two years pointing to the dangers of head injuries.

"We now know that even one concussion can have long-term consequences," said Waide, a co-sponsor of the legislation. "What this bill is going to do ... is create a program to provide training to coaches and medical personnel that deal with athletes on the field."

Coaches already are required to have basic training on preventing and recognizing head injuries. The bill, if passed by the Senate, would mandate that coaches complete additional training by the start of the 2012-13 school year.

Among the requirements are removing a student-athlete from practice or competition when a concussion is suspected. The athlete may not return to play before having an evaluation by a physician, certified athletic trainer or other certified medical professional to determine whether a concussion had occurred.

"Sometimes the real effects don't show up until later," said Waide, who works as a physical therapist. "So the on-field examination is so critical."

The bill, approved by the House in a 99-0 vote Thursday, moves to the Senate.

In another matter, the Senate adjourned Thursday in honor of the late Thomas Brown Badgett Sr. of Madisonville — based on a resolution introduced by Sen. Jerry Rhoads, a Madisonville Democrat.

Badgett, who died June 30 last year, formerly had a coal company, highway construction business and real estate development operation. He became a friend of legendary University of Kentucky basketball coach Adolph Rupp.

Badgett also was known for his philanthropy, donating millions to the community in support of the YMCA, high school athletics, Madisonville Community College and Community Improvement Foundation. One of the facilities named after him is the Badgett Energy and Advanced Technology Center on MCC's Madisonville campus.

Jackson said seeing the bridge is a once in a life-time experience that is part of local history.

"It's a site you'd never expect to see," Maupin added.

The bridge was damaged Jan. 26 when a cargo ship, the Delta Mariner, carrying aeronautical equipment, hit the bridge and tore off a 322-foot section of it.

The 8,400-ton ship is still in the water with the severed section of the bridge hanging across the bow of the boat.

Over the course of the four-hour showing, 1,895 people visited the bridge and took pictures, video and talked with LBL staff about the incident.

The area west on U.S. 68 past Woodlands Trace including the Fenton Camping Area and Boat Launch is still closed to all vehicle, boat and pedestrian traffic, according to a LBL news release.

Those found in restricted areas will be cited by the Coast Guard.

PARK: Round table park to be renovated unveils the college's literary magazine each year; and a replica of King Arthur's round table, 16 feet in diameter and 2,100 pounds, with a collection of stone seats surrounding it.

Adorning a piece of stone in the park is a plaque dedicated to Frances Thomas, a former teacher at the college who conceived the park and the school's literary magazine. Frances helped establish the park in 1974, organizing private donations for its construction. She oversaw it until she retired in 1996.

"It's my second home and you'll see me sitting around the park," Thomas told the New Era in 2004.

Thomas' three daughters — Pam Thomas, Debbie James and Francie Thomas — established an endowment in 2004 for the preservation of the park. The three invested $6,000 in the fund and another $4,000 was quickly added in private donations.

Frances Thomas now lives in a nursing home in Henderson and wasn't available for comment. Pam feels the park is a legacy for her and wants to see it maintained.

"I just thought it was very important to preserve the park," Pam Thomas said. "I just think all that needs to be protected. I hope (it) will last for a long, long time."

The college has built up between $20,000 and $25,000 in the endowment, largely through interest on the initial investment. Renovations to the park are planned for the spring. They will include improvements to the park's front walkway and more plantings along its front entrance.

Beverly Atwood, the college's chief business affairs officer, said they have a three-phase plan for improving the park; improving the park's entrance is the project's first phase. In the second, they plan to add more plantings throughout the park. In phase three, they want to add a walkway that runs through the park and into the rest of campus. They also want to enhance the park's lighting and add a sprinkler system, she said.

Atwood said the endowment's money will cover the first phase, but they will need three or four times that to fund the entire project.

"We hope that if we have additions to the endowment, which we would always like to have, that will speed up phases two and three," Atwood said. "We kind of just want to bring some updates to (the park) to preserve it. It is so important for us."

Atwood has worked at HCC since the park's inception and became friends with Frances Thomas through the years. After the park was established, Atwood said, Thomas would constantly be thinking of new ways to improve it. Atwood recalled a family trip to Greece the Thomases took in 1989. Returning with a collection of photos, Frances spoke with Atwood about incorporating the Greek designs into the park.

"I just remember that she would always come by and say, 'Okay, here is what I'm thinking about doing next.'" Atwood said. "She had a vision and she intended to bring it off. You could either work with it or against it, but you wanted to work with it because she was so nice about it."

Several of the park's structures were built by John T. Robertson, a Hopkinsville contractor who died in December. Pam said Robertson and her mother were great friends and collaborators on the park's design. She was saddened by his loss.

"(He was) quite an architect and a builder," Pam Thomas said. "He had a great reputation."

Frances Thomas established the literary magazine, called The Round Table, with her students in 1965. Ralph, who started at the college in 1996, took the magazine over when she retired. Since leaving the college, Ralph said she has always supported him in his management of the magazine.

Atwood said many teachers like to use the park for classes. Ralph takes his classes to the park at least once a semester, he said, and encourages his students to use it on their own time.

"I like to take my students out there early in the semester," Ralph said. "I say, 'If you have 15 minutes between classes, instead of rapping with your friends about nothing, how about walking down to the park and read a bit or do a little writing?' It is a great place to get away from the hustle and bustle of campus."

Cadiz police warn of 'grandparent scam'

The Cadiz Police Department is warning people to be aware of scam artists after someone allegedly tried to swindle a Cadiz resident recently.

The person tried the "grandparent scam," according to a news release. The scam involves calling a victim and telling them to send money in order to help a grandchild who is abroad and in danger, the report states.

Cadiz police advise anyone contacted by someone attempting to carry out this scam to contact the authorities immediately.

HISTORY: Shared lessons in genealogy white family learning about its slaveholding ancestors. She hopes that the opposite will become more common — for white Americans to research their slaveholding ancestors and to extend what they learn to black families looking for information about their ancestors.

She believes there are lessons in these connections, often painful and awkward, between black and white Americans.

"It would be heartening for someone to come looking for me," Smith said.

Smith, 53, does consulting work in the Chicago area and was the communication's director and press secretary for President Barack Obama's U.S. Senate primary campaign. She lived in Africa from 1993-95 and has visited several slave ports for an educational project.

The shared stories of the descendants of slaveholders and enslaved people will be the topic of three programs Smith will lead in Kentucky for Black History Month. She will give strategies for genealogy research and suggest ways slavery connections can open talks between blacks and whites about social justice today.

The first program will begin at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the Thomas D. Clark Center for Kentucky History, 100 W. Broadway St., in Frankfort. It will include a lunch break and conclude at 1:45 p.m. The Kentucky Historical Society and the Kentucky Genealogical Society are co-sponsors.

Anyone planning to attend should call 502-564-1792, ext. 4460.

The other programs led by Smith are planned at noon Feb. 14 at the Livingston County Historical Society in Smithland and at 6:30 p.m. Feb. 16 at the Crittenden County Public Library in Marion.

Much of Smith's research in Kentucky has been done in Livingston and Crittenden counties. She has Kentucky ties to a sister of Thomas Jefferson who lived in Livingston County and to an editor of the Louisville Times newspaper during the 1930s and '40s.

About 20 years ago, her Missouri research led to a collaboration with a college professor of sociology, Ann Neel, who is white and had been doing her own genealogy research for many years. Smith eventually discovered that Neel's ancestors had enslaved one of her ancestors.

Today they give a presentation called "Entangled Lives: A Conversation Between Descendants of Master and Enslaved." They have appeared on "The Oprah Winfrey Show" and other venues to talk about the rewarding and difficult aspects of their relationship and how the historical gravity of it affects them today. They will be speaking Feb. 22 at Sweet Briar College in Virginia and on Feb. 25 at the Charlottesville (Va.) City Council.

A few years ago, Smith and Neel learned they are also blood related, going back about 10 generations on Smith's father's side.

Explaining their connections and desire to write a book, Smith said in an email, "Ann and I believe we will always work together on these issues in some way, as we have always done. It seems as though it's our destiny."

QuickInfo: Pam's tips for genealogy research:

- Collect oral histories, first from your parents and grandparents, then from the oldest living members of the family.
- Try to find a family member in every census that is now public. The 1940 Census will become public in April.
- Research all of your relatives in a generation. For example, don't just gather information about your grandmother; also collect information about her siblings.
- For African-Americans, try to go back at least to 1870, when blacks were first listed by name in the census.
- Research slave schedules that were part of the 1850 and 1860 censuses. These do not give names but do list ages and gender of slaves for all slaveholders.
- Use the free site www.familysearch.com to search census records. Ancestry.com has a two-week free trial period.
- Interview older people in a community to gather clues about names and former residences.
- Search state archives and county records, including probate records.

BROOKS: Building on the family name

"He hired minorities, there were female nurses, there were nutritionists and lab technicians," Brooks said. "Two of his brothers were pharmacists and another brother was a mortician. They had a lock on anyone living, dying or needing medicine."

Brooks' father and uncle opened a loan office in Hopkinsville for minorities and later his father went to work for Phelps Dodge where he became the first black person to work in human resources for the company.

Brooks' grandfather on his mother's side owned a barbecue restaurant in Paducah across from the city's court house. Judges, lawyers and politicians would frequent the restaurant and his mother got to know them.

"My mother moved to Hopkinsville and got involved in politics," Brooks said. "She was the president and area director for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People."

Brooks' mother, Nang Ping, also was a field representative for then Congressman Carroll Hubbard. She also was instrumental in galvanizing the election of Hopkinsville's first female mayor and first black sheriff. Brooks, in turn, got to know these people.

"My mother would campaign and me and my football friends would go door to door," Brooks said. "Not that I had a choice."

By the time Brooks was ready to run for office, he had generations of experience to pull from.

A name with history

Brooks grew up in Hopkinsville and attended Christian County High School. Integration had already made it's way through the town and Brooks found himself playing quarterback on the football team. During his time as quarterback the team won the state championship in 1982.

"We were like family — we are at each other's houses, our parents would cook for us, we were close knit and had each other's back," Brooks said. "I was the only minority but it didn't matter because they were my friends."

Drop-out age needs statewide standard

A bill that would allow Kentucky's local school districts to raise the compulsory school attendance age to 18 was approved Thursday by the Senate Education Committee.

Requiring children to stay in school to age 18 is the right thing to do for Kentucky and its students. But this bill sponsored by Sen. Jack Westwood, R-Erlanger, is the wrong approach. The General Assembly should instead adopt House Bill 216, which sets a statewide standard for compulsory attendance.

OUR OPINION

It would raise the drop-out age in all districts to 17 by July 1, 2016, and to 18 by July 1, 2017.

Kentucky has 176 public school districts. We should have one standard for all of them rather than a scattered puzzle approach to embracing the philosophy that every child should stay in school long enough to earn a high school diploma.

Supporters of the Senate's local approach might argue it is a compromise in the debate about mandating school attendance to age 18. We think it's cop out. It's also another example of kicking a decision down the road.

Yes, there is the problem of students who become disruptive because they no longer want to be in school, and that is the biggest argument against the requiring school attendance to age 18. It's a debate going on in many states. President Barack Obama, in his State of the Union address last month, heightened the discussion with a call for all states to raise their drop-out age to 18.

Twenty-six states, including Kentucky, require students to stay in school until they turn 16. The remaining states require attendance to age 17 or 18, according to the National Conference on State Legislatures.

Kentucky's drop-out age was set in 1934. It's time to set a higher standard.

Local control is often the best approach to legislation, but in this situation, it should apply to the ways that districts adapt to a higher drop-out age. If the House bill passes, local districts will have four years to plan local approaches to helping students stay in school longer. Local districts will need to develop programs that address the unique needs of students who do not succeed in traditional classroom settings. Vocational programs and non-traditional high school schedules will address many of the problems created by students who struggle in conventional school settings.

Kentucky should adopt a statewide standard for compulsory attendance to 18. And local districts should create the best programs to meet the needs of students.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Impact of the individual vote under attack on many levels

The Editor, New Era,

As a candidate for local offices more than once, I feel a need to respond to your editorial on Feb. 1 entitled "Candidates lacking for energetic local races." Although the low turn-out of candidates is disappointing, we must come to understand that the political landscape is under attack.

No longer are local, state and national elections driven by a citizen-powered democracy. Policy-making, multi-millionaires, wealthy conservatives, have all but eliminated freedom of choice in the democratic process.

The impact of our individual vote is under attack locally, statewide and nationally. Powerful barriers are put in the way when those with money and power cannot win on merit. You mentioned that democracy depends on honest elections supported by contested races and interested voters who cast ballots. Some local officials have been in office long enough to gain absolute power. Absolute power corrupts absolutely. We have reached a point in our free and democratic society when one of two Americans are in poverty or could be considered low-income. The problem is bigger than race and gender. We have a "people problem." It has become increasingly apparent that many holding public office are not doing a good job of creating policies and procedures that accommodate the American dream of a job, home and some personal security for the majority of our citizens.

Only a forceful effort by grassroots people can protect our right to influence the political process. Every public official that did not receive a challenge can be challenged by an eligible citizen through a process called recall. Let's apply the recall process to every local public official that did not receive a challenger. Public officials should be held accountable by having to prove they are worthy of the public's trust during the electoral season.

Together we have the power to make a difference. Today is the day and now the time. Recall every public official.

I speak for the poor.

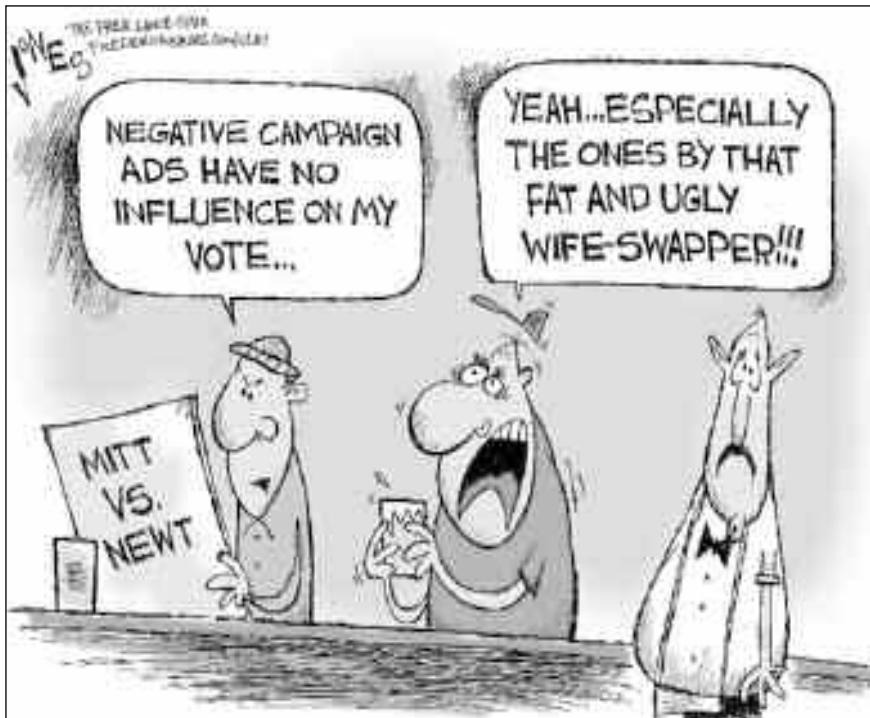

Walter Shamble

THOUGHT OF THE DAY

"Cautious, careful people always casting about to preserve their reputation or social standards never can bring about reform. Those who are really in earnest are willing to be anything or nothing in the world's estimation, and publicly and privately, in season and out, avow their sympathies with despised ideas and their advocates, and bear the consequences."

Susan B. Anthony

Leader of suffrage movement for American women (1820-1906)

COLUMNIST

Shatter black suicide myth

The death of Don Cornelius, creator and host of "Soul Train," brought two conflicting memories to mind: the weekly joy of that iconic program as a defining feature of black American pop culture and the terrible pain inflicted on the surviving family and friends of those who commit suicide.

Like countless other boomers, I feel as though I grew up with "Soul Train." The old clips look like an amusing period piece today, especially to our kids or grandkids who wonder how any of us could have thought those "Saturday Night Fever" fashions were cool.

But in the 1970s and beyond, "Soul Train" defined cutting-edge cool. It became the longest running syndicated show of its type on TV and, as Cornelius said every week, "the hippest trip in the galaxy."

But the hip trip finally came to an end a few years ago on TV and, for Cornelius, amid reports in recent years of failing health. Police say he died in his Los Angeles home of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

That tragedy has special meaning in the African American community, which has long nourished a dangerous myth that black people don't commit suicide.

It is a point of mythical ethnic pride that our ancestors found ways to persevere despite centuries of slavery, struggle and hardship. Black people created the blues, it is often said, because we didn't have psychotherapists.

Besides, as an old joke goes, we black people don't kill ourselves because you can't kill yourself by jumping out of a basement window. We can only wish that were true. Although whites and Native Americans have the highest suicide rates, according to the Centers for Disease Control, the black suicide rate has been high enough in recent years to claim one African American every 4.5 hours.

No group is immune. By gender, non-Hispanic white and Native American men have the highest suicide rates, of about 25 per 100,000. That's more than four times the rate of women in each racial group. It also is more than twice the rate of black and Hispanic men, whose suicide rate of about 11 per 100,000 is five times that rate of black and Hispanic women. Asian-American men have a rate of about 9 per 100,000, slightly more than twice the rate of Asian-American women.

Yet the black suicide myth persists. "As a mental-health advocate, over the years I've heard variations of the 'black people don't commit suicide' meme," wrote Bassey Ikpi at the black-oriented website The Root after Cornelius' death. "Yesterday the chorus was deafening. People went so far as to create elaborate conspiracy theories rather than accept what could be a simple truth — that Cornelius had taken his own life."

I share her sense of frustration. I suddenly became an expert because of a personal tragedy, as many Chicagoans know. Back in May 1984, suicide ended the life and career of Leanita McClain, an award-winning Chicago Tribune columnist and ghetto-to-Gold-Coast success story.

She was also my former wife. She killed herself with an overdose of prescribed pills two years after our divorce. Her upward career trajectory, like our marriage, was stopped only by the furies of her relentless depression.

"Happiness is a private club that will not let me enter," she wrote in her "generic suicide note."

It is not hard, although it is not pain-free either; for me to imagine that Don Cornelius could have written the same message. Suicides inflict a terrible cruelty on the survivors. Everyone asks "why?" and there are no easy answers. I was surprised by how many of my friends came forth to share stories of their loved ones who had ended their own lives or come close to it in their severe depression. I was shocked by how common such illnesses can be, regardless of race or community background.

I also learned about guilt. People feel guilty if they failed to get help for their lost loved one, a counselor told me, and they feel guilty if they did get help and the loved one killed themselves anyway. It is best to seek the help. Whether you believe it or not, you have too much to lose.

BROOKS: Building on a family name

After graduating high school, Brooks attended Western Kentucky University on a scholarship as a pre-med major. However, he left and attended mortuary school. After becoming a mortician, Brooks worked at a funeral home in Clarksville, Tenn., and it was during that time he began thinking about public service.

"My mom always mentioned it," Brooks said. "She would say, 'It's not like you're not familiar with it or haven't been around it.' She did the pushing and then the opportunity came about and I wanted to make a difference."

"More than anything I focused on wanting to help Hopkinsville grow and bring back the nostalgia – the way it used to be in the '60s. Hopkinsville was the city to come to. From Clarksville (and) Trigg and Todd counties, everyone flocked here for shopping, dining and social events. Both whites and minorities. My thought process was this was something we could get back."

With that goal Brooks began to campaign. He thinks his campaign may have been smoother than what other candidates experience.

"In politics I would say one of the things is it can be like a popularity contest," Brooks said. "I had a name they knew. They know my family and they knew me from when I played football I was a quarterback on a championship team. I have the same name as my uncle and grandfather. It is an established name with a history that preceded me. It opened up a lot of doors."

Still, Brooks said he didn't feel like he had big shoes to fill.

"I ran on my own accord," Brooks said. "My mother was behind me to bounce ideas off of though. She knew federal judges, local and state level politicians. I had a resource, like an almanac."

His own legacy

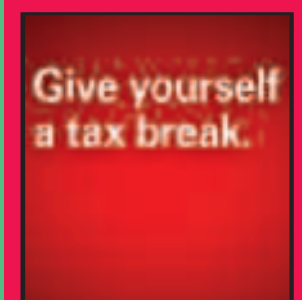

Brooks said his family was ecstatic when he won. He became the youngest person ever elected to Hopkinsville City Council. He had their support during his campaign with many of them sending in contributions. Now Brooks has served on the council for 20 years, excluding 2006-08.

During his time as a city council member, Brooks has helped to provided utilities to Fort Campbell Boulevard, worked on the storm water utility board to help with flooding problems and also helped to establish homes and provide water and sewer lines to an annexed portion of the city.

"Sometimes you think about (the legacy you leave behind), like when you're being interviewed," Brooks said. "I have a proud history, me, my brother, my cousins, my whole family. I hope people remember me as being fair and forthright and honest and that it didn't really matter to me what a person's race was, but the character of the person."

GOSLYN: Wife may have murdered soldier husband

Deputies responding to a call Friday night about a man lying in the road found Vincent Goslyn's body roughly a quarter mile from a parked van, according to Miller.

Miller confirmed Sunday that police received multiple 911 calls about the shooting, and one of those calls was made by Jessie Goslyn.

After her husband had been pronounced dead by Coroner Dorris Lamb, Jessie Goslyn was seen kneeling by a ditch while she vomited and cried.

Miller said he was unsure how many times Vincent Goslyn had been shot.

A search team was called out to the area around midnight Friday to look for evidence in the surrounding fields, Miller said.

Both Goslyns are listed as having a Fort Campbell address. According to Jessie Goslyn's Facebook page, the two have been married since July 13, 2005. There is also a Facebook photo album titled "My Babies" with pictures of three young children. Miller said the couple does have children, but he was unsure how many and didn't know their ages. He said Fort Campbell is in charge of making arrangements for the couple's children.

The Hopkinsville Police Department and Kentucky State Police are assisting the sheriff's office with the investigation.

Miller said there are a few possible motives for the shooting that are still being investigated but he declined to elaborate on them at this time.

"Even though we have two arrests, we still have a case to work so we're not releasing a lot of specifics about details right now," Miller said, adding that more information would be made available as the investigation wraps up.

New Era staff writers Benjamin Joubert and Dave Boucher contributed to this report.

Living for Christ can be the greatest adventure you'll ever know

DEAR REV. GRAHAM: I have several Christian friends, but to be honest they live kind of dull lives. They say I need to become a Christian, but I can't get very excited about it, frankly. Am I missing something? — K.W.

DEAR K.W.: Yes, you're missing something very important: You're missing the joy and peace that come from knowing God in a personal way. You also are missing the hope that comes from knowing that someday you will be in God's presence forever.

But I'm afraid your friends are missing something, too! God doesn't want us to live dull, cheerless lives, but lives of joy and expectancy. Think of it: When we know Christ and follow Him, He is with us every moment of the day, and we are now part of God's family. Why shouldn't we be joyous?

Does this mean God wants us to ignore the suffering of others, or that He doesn't care if we live self-centered lives that ignore God's command for us to turn our backs on sin? No, of course not. But when we know Christ is with us, we experience a deeper joy — a joy that isn't dependent on our outward circumstances.

Don't let the shortcomings of a few keep you from Christ. Open your heart and life to Him — and then help your friends discover the wonder of Christ's joy also.

HEARING LOSS and DEMENTIA LINKED

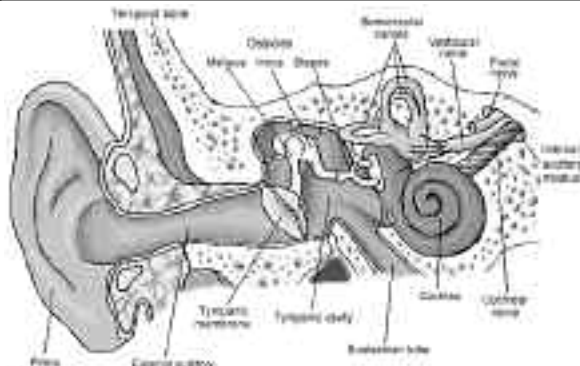

If hearing loss goes untreated, a condition called "auditory deprivation" occurs, this has been confirmed by scientific studies. Seniors with hearing loss are significantly more likely to develop dementia over time than those who retain their hearing, a study by Johns Hopkins and National Institute on Aging researchers suggests. The findings, the researchers say, could lead to new ways to combat dementia, a condition that affects millions of people worldwide. Although the reason for the link between the two conditions is unknown, the investigators suggest that a common pathology may underlie both or that the strain of decoding sounds over the years may overwhelm the brains of people with hearing loss, leaving them more vulnerable to dementia. They also speculate that hearing loss could lead to dementia by making individuals more socially isolated, a known risk factor for dementia and other cognitive disorders. But there's good news! Whatever the cause, the scientists report, their finding may offer a starting point for interventions even as simple as hearing aids - that could delay or prevent dementia by improving patients' hearing.

Giants defeat Patriots for Super Bowl title

BY HOWARD FENDRICH
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

INDIANAPOLIS — Eli Manning and the Giants one-upped Tom Brady and the Patriots again, coming back with a last-minute touchdown to beat New England 21-17 Sunday night for New York's fourth Super Bowl title.

It was a rematch of the 2008 NFL championship, when Manning led New York past New England to ruin the Patriots' bid for a perfect season.

This was the first Super Bowl with two starting quarterbacks who previously won the big game's MVP award — and they took turns being brilliant. Manning became the first QB to open a Super Bowl with nine consecutive completions. Later, Brady put together a run of 16 completions in a row, breaking another Super Bowl mark.

"It's been a wild game, a wild season."

But in the end, it was Manning — the winner of his second MVP award — who directed the nine-play, 88-yard drive that put New York ahead.

"It's been a wild game, a wild season," Manning said.

Ahmad Bradshaw capped the winning drive with a 6-yard run up the middle. He wanted to stop at the 1-yard line but fell backward into the end zone.

Hoops stars give Hoptown reason to be full of pride

For the second weekend in a row, I was holding my chair down watching the LSU Tigers play basketball on television.

Unlike last weekend when the announcer reported that former Christian County High School star Anthony Hickey Jr. led Hopkinsville to the Class 5-A state basketball championship in Kentucky, Joe Dean Jr. got Hickey's statistics right on Saturday.

Hickey scored 12 points and had a key basket late in the game that helped the Tigers knock off Arkansas Saturday in Baton Rouge.

Although he may not be on the "Dean's List" for the Southeastern Conference's top five freshmen this season, the former Kentucky Mr. Basketball is having a terrific season for LSU. He is averaging 9.7 points, four assists, 3.8 rebounds and leads the SEC in steals with 2.2 per game.

And Hickey is just one of several former Colonels enjoying a successful season in Division-I basketball.

Hickey's former teammate, Donovan Kates, is a junior for Manhattan University. Kates is playing 16.5 minutes per game and averaging just more than five points per contest. Manhattan, who is coached by former Kentucky walk-on Steve Masiello, is 17-8 overall and are a game behind Iona for first place and a half-game behind Loyola, Md., for third place in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference.

Another former Colonel, Corey Wilford, who scored a career-high 16 points in a 75-72 loss to Tennessee State Saturday night. He also had 15 points last week against Murray State.

Wilford is a junior-college transfer for the Red Hawks. He has connected on 11 of 12 free throw attempts and is shooting nearly 40 percent from 3-point range.

But those are just the former Christian County stars.

Heritage Christian Academy alum John Fraley exploded for 31 points and 17 rebounds for Austin Peay Thursday night. He is quickly becoming the heartbeat of a Governors' squad, which needs a true leader heading down the stretch. The 6-foot-9 senior is averaging 12.8 points and 9.7 rebounds this season.

Former University Heights Academy star TyShwan Edmondson also averages 12.8 points per game for the Governors. He also is averaging 3.5 rebounds and two assists per game.

I can't help but have a huge sense of pride every time these players are shown on television and the announcer says, "From Hopkinsville, Ky."

But you would think that someone would notice that Hopkinsville is a hotbed of basketball talent. Wouldn't it be nice if an announcer somewhere would say, "Hickey is from Hopkinsville, Ky., the same small

Former Wildcats come home

Burnett, 9 others inducted into Trigg County HOF

BY KEITH JENKINS
NEW ERA ASSISTANT SPORT EDITOR

Duke Burnett couldn't have possibly known what he was walking into when he accepted the position of head boys' basketball coach at Trigg County High School in 1959.

The Wildcats were bad, their gymnasium was even worse and race relations in Cadiz weren't exactly conducive to creating a winning atmosphere.

To make matters worse for Burnett, in only his second season at Trigg, both the school and the gym burned to the ground in the summer of 1960. Not only was Burnett's team bad, he now lacked the necessary facilities to help them improve.

Burnett moved his practices to a local warehouse and Trigg played all of their games on the road at Hopkinsville and Christian County high schools.

"Of course the school burned, and we had a small gym," said Burnett, who along with nine other former Wildcats, was honored at the Second Annual Trigg County High School Athletic Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony and Banquet Saturday night inside the school's cafeteria. "We had a very little following. Of course the team wasn't

HHS, Lady Blazers set for showdown

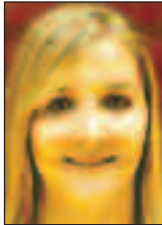

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

The Hopkinsville Lady Tigers and University Heights Academy Lady Blazers tuned up for their Tuesday night District 8 basketball showdown by picking up wins Saturday afternoon.

Hopkinsville used a hot shooting first half to turn back visiting Livingston Central 69-51 to improve to 21-4 on the season.

The Lady Tigers led 23-11 after one quarter and opened up a 44-19 lead at halftime.

Christy Soldo led four Hopkinsville players in double figures with 18 points. Haley Cook had 15, Madison Duvall added 14 and J'Lynn Majors provided 13. The victory was the fourth in a row for Hopkinsville, which travels to face UHA at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the Lady Blazers broke open a close game at Lyon County Saturday by outscoring the Lady Lyons 16-9 and went on to win 49-40.

DeNayia Holmes scored 19 points and Dannika Prater added 12 for the Lady Blazers, who improved to 18-3 on the season.

Hopkinsville beat UHA 70-59 in December at Tiger Gym. The Lady Blazers can lock up the No. 2 seed in the district tournament with a victory. However, a Hopkinsville victory would send the Lady Blazers into a tie for second place with Christian County. A coin flip would have to be used to decide the No. 2 and No. 3 seeds.

Fort Campbell is the No. 4 seed. Hopkinsville wrapped up the

BOWL: Giants drop Patriots for NFL title

Less than a minute later it came down to one last play, when Brady's long heave into the end zone fell incomplete among a maze of players. New England had the ball for all of one play in the first 11 1-2 minutes, and that play was an utter failure, a rare poor decision by Brady. After Steve Weatherford's punt was downed at the New England 6, Brady dropped to pass in the end zone and had time. With everyone covered and Giants defensive end Justin Tuck finally coming free to provide pressure, Brady heaved the ball downfield while still in the pocket. Only problem: No Patriots receivers were anywhere near the pass. The Giants were awarded a safety for Brady's grounding in the end zone. Manning, meanwhile, couldn't have been more on target early, hitting six receivers in the first period, completing his first nine throws, a Super Bowl record. He also was aided by Ahmad Bradshaw, who hardly looked like a running back with a bad foot. Bradshaw broke a 24-yard run, and New England made another critical mistake by having 12 men on the field on a third-and-3 on which the Giants fumbled. Instead, New York got a first down at the 6, and two plays later Victor Cruz beat James Ihejigbo on a slant to make it 9-0, prompting Cruz to break into his signature salsa move. Manning's first incomple tion didn't come until 1:19 into the second quarter. At that point, it was 9-3 after Stephen Gostkowski's 29-yard field goal. The Patriots got to the Giants' 11, but All-Pro DE Jason Pierre-Paul blocked a third-down pass. Soon after, when the Patriots had a three-and-out and Pierre-Paul blocked another throw, Belichick and offensive coordinator Bill O'Brien had a quick discussion. Then O'Brien, soon to take over as Penn State coach, went over to the struggling Brady.

good. But the gymnasium, which is a nice gym today, 50 years later it's still a beautiful gym. Things changed when we integrated from the standpoint our team was better than it had ever been." After compiling a 25-25 record in his first two seasons, Burnett and the Wildcats got a brand new gym in 1962. But before he and his players could christen it, Burnett was faced with a different challenge — integration. The year 1962 not only marked the first season of the new Wildcat gym, it also marked the first year black students were allowed inside the doors of Trigg County High School. "When I came from Elizabethtown, we had already integrated schools," Burnett said. "So coming down here, it was a big deal, but to me, it wasn't a big deal. I did what they asked me to do. I manned the gym because they thought something would be over there. We all did our jobs, and in the long run it turned out great."

Burnett said the community was in shambles. But that quickly changed. Burnett and the Wildcats collected 20 wins in 23 games in their first season in the new gym, and set a school record with 23 total victories and their first district title in 23 years. Trigg County went on to capture the school's first region tournament win before losing to Princeton Dotson in the semifinals. The Wildcats again won 23 games and a district title in 1965 before falling to Hopkinsville Attacks, an all-black school, in the region semifinals. "I think the basketball team had more to do with the success than anything else," Burnett said of the quick improvement in race relations in Cadiz. "But we had a great group of kids here too. ... We had some of those kids who had gone to Attacks, and they were good kids. They were good students and they were an asset to the community. When you have good kids, it makes all the difference in the world." Burnett won his third and final district title at Trigg in his last season in Cadiz in 1967. Burnett went 133-77 during his tenure as Trigg coach. His 133 wins are the third most in school history and his .633 winning percentage ranks second all time. Buddy Sivills, one of Burnett's premier players, also was honored Saturday. Sivills thanked Burnett for everything he did for the team and more importantly the community. "Coach, thank you for coming to Trigg County," Sivills said to Burnett. "You made us." Sivills, who finished his career as the school's second all-time leading scorer with 1,262 points and averaged double figures in points in his final three years, including a team-best 19.3 points per game in 1965, credited Burnett for teaching him toughness and fundamentals. Other inductees included Chappel Allen, a starting forward/center on the Trigg boys' basketball team in the early 1950s, Sam "Fox" Love, a former Trigg track and cross country runner who still holds school and state records 30 years after his career, and Gary "Coach Sieg" Siegmund, the public address announcer for Wildcat football and a former track and field, baseball, softball, football, girls' and boys' basketball coach and trainer. David Butts, a former three-sport standout for the Wildcats from 1977-82, also was honored. Upon graduation, Butts played baseball a Murray Stae where he was a two-time All-Ohio Valley Conference selection and later drafted by the Atlanta Braves. Ginger Wallace, the lone female 2012 inductee, began competing at the varsity level as a fourth-grade runner on the Trigg cross country team. Wallace finished fourth at the regional cross country meet and helped the team to its first title in 1981 as an eighth-grader. Inductees Selby Grubbs, Joe Jagers and David Radford were represented by family members. Grubbs, who was unable to attend after recently undergoing hip replacement surgery at a Madisonville hospital, was the leading rusher and scorer for Trigg's state champion football teams in 1971 and 1972. Grubbs' 2,242 yards rushing in '72 remain a single-season school record. Jagers, who coached the Wildcat football team to the '71 and '72 state titles, became a member of his third hall of fame, having already been inducted into the Kentucky High School Athletic Association Hall of Fame and the National High School Hall of Fame.

Debbie Morris successfully petitioned to get guardrails installed on the John E. Woodruff Bridge after her son, Charles, and another teenager were killed in a wreck on the bridge. Her sister, Lisa, was found murdered in Indiana six months after her son died.

Cadiz woman finds comfort after losing son, sister

BY JO ANN KNOUT
FOR THE NEW ERA

CADIZ, Ky — A tire blew out at Woodruff Bridge and a teenage father drowned in four feet of water.

“How could he drown in four feet of water? He was 6 feet, 2 (and one half) inches tall,” said his mother, Debbie Morris, a former school bus driver for Trigg County schools.

When his son, Charles Shawn Morris, 17, died Nov. 5, 1992, her son’s car went over the embankment and he was knocked out. It was late at night on a lonely road and no one found him until the next day.

School officials took Debbie aside after she completed her bus route and told her. She refused to believe it.

“Charles had just left my house the night before to go home,” she recalls. “He ran into a nephew who wanted a ride home and they fooled around a little while so it was late when he headed home by himself.”

His wife, Dana, also 17, and daughter, Amber, 6 months, were waiting at home.

Six months later, Debbie’s sister, Lisa Atwell Wallace, 25, was found murdered in Indiana.

“Lisa had gone to Indiana to visit a boyfriend,” Debbie recalls. “She had promised to call mom every night while she was gone. She had never missed calling mom on her birthday. When she didn’t call mom on her birthday and didn’t call and didn’t call ... we knew something was wrong.”

Debbie and the family started calling hospitals in Indianapolis, then morgues. One morgue representative said an unidentified body had been found on Interstate 75 in Connersville at a truck stop.

“A detective came here with photos,” Debbie said. “He asked about marks or tattoos. Lisa had a tattoo no one else knew about but me. She had a boy’s name covered with flowers. It was at the side of her tummy.”

The tattoo helped identify Lisa and soon all the brothers and sisters we loaded up and headed to Indiana to bring Lisa home. They visited the place she died, then to the mortuary and then the cemetery where Lisa was already buried as John Doe.

Lisa’s daughter, Stephanie Hall, didn’t understand. “It is and has been hard growing up without a mother,” Hall said. “No one knows how it is until you experience it. I have accepted now that my mom is in a better place. But what is the hardest is that they have never caught who did it.”

People grieve and people recover in different ways. In the time after Charles’ death, and with the Lisa’s death fresh in her mind, Debbie, along with family and friends, could be found passing out petitions door to door and soliciting for news coverage from all local papers about the need for guardrails at Woodruff Bridge on route 274.

As they worked to build rails for the bridge another teenager was killed — around the same time Lisa was murdered.

The rails were finally installed about five years later, Debbie said.

Building the rails to save other lives has brought some closure to the loss of Charles for Debbie and her husband, whose name is also Charles.

“Not a day goes by he doesn’t cross my mind,” Debbie admits. “As far as going on, it was Amber, his daughter, that got me through. She was just like him. Her smile and his big brown eyes. I can still see him in her.”

Debbie said Amber, who is now 19, graduated from high school recently and now has her own baby girl, Alani Mays.

“Amber has so much of his ways,” Debbie added. “His quick temper and as loving and caring as he was, especially with Alani. I could just see him holding (Alani) and smile.”

KINDNESS LIVES ON

26-year-old shot in Cadiz left an impression on community

BY JO ANN KNOUT
FOR THE NEW ERA

CADIZ, Ky. – A shot rang out in the night and a beautiful smile became a memory.

Eric Jones, 26, a son, father, brother and role model to many teenage boys, may have died in December, but his memory lives on.

“I was just devastated,” his mother, Lisa Bumphis, recalled. “The thing that got me through it was when I went to the Minute Mart and the kids told me all the nice things he said. He was like a role model to them. He told them to stay on the right track and they could do anything they wanted to.”

The teens were ages 15 through 17.

“He used that Minute Mart to reach out to kids,” Eric’s mother added.

Eric is also remembered by other customers of the Minute Mart on Main Street. Winnie Tooke, 103, remembers how he got products for her and her friend and even gave her friend a “Get Well” card when she was ill.

“He always made me smile,” another customer, Debbie Morris, said. “No matter how bad a day I had, he always had a smile.”

Eric was shot in December following a birthday party at the Trigg County Recreation Center. Even then, he was trying to protect a friend, according to accounts of the shooting.

Starting the new year without Eric is his 1-year-old son, Zaryan. Another baby is on the way who will never see the father who already put a crib in the unborn child’s bedroom.

Two nephews, Tahj, 9, and Dekavion, 11, will miss his hugs and the time Eric spent with them.

Brothers, Byran, 28, Jeremy, 23, and sister, Rekia, 27, will cherish the childhood closeness and adult companionships.

“We lost a true brother, a real stand-up guy that you could count on anytime, day or night.”

Tim Jackson

Childhood friend and former teammate of Eric Jones

Stephanie Hall went through grade school and high school with Eric.

“The one thing I remember most about him,” she said, “he always had a smile on his face. He was always making jokes and cutting up in class. He was always kind to everyone.”

Eric may be gone but he will never be forgotten by those who were touched by his smile and kindness.

“A kind, articulate, funny and inspiring young man was taken from us too soon. God has blessed us with a true friend all these years,” said Tim Jackson, another childhood friend and teammate of Eric’s. “I am so grateful and thankful. I was blessed enough to grow up on the football fields with ‘Easy.’ Football made us more than teammates. We were all brothers in the field.”

“We not only lost a great friend who would go out of this way for you or put that magic laughter to use when you felt down and out, we lost a true brother, a real stand-up guy that you could count on anytime, day or night.”

“God has gotten himself an angel whose smile will light the skies of heaven. We all love and miss you, ‘Easy.’ Rest in Peace, Eric Jones.”

Eric’s mother still has many pieces of her son with her in her home, where he lived with his dog, Kane.

“I decided to keep his dog,” she said. “The day Eric died, the dog got loose and went to the Minute Mark looking for him. I brought him home and am trying to take care of him.”

Bumphis felt a connection with the song “Shawty Know” and requested that funeral participants play it on their car radios in the caravan to the cemetery.

She was honored by a friend with a charcoal drawing of Eric using the words from the song as lines of the sketch.

A basketball signed by each of Eric’s teammates was also given to his mother by the coach, Mike Wright.

Bumphis goes to Rocky Ridge Baptist Church, where she receives friendship and comfort.

Raising three children as a single mother was not easy, she said, but she is proud of what Eric became.

“He had it hard,” she explained. “He got into trouble when he was young. He was influenced by the streets. But he found that wasn’t the way. I believe if you steer kids in the right way, they will find their way there again.”

Smiling, she continued, “I’m proud to see the boy I raised become the man that he was.”

While the memories of Eric are sweet ones, his mother admits that his death has been hard and there are some things she will never get over.

“I’m starting the new year without him. I will miss his great personality. He used to come to my room. We would talk about everything.”

Wiping a tear from her eye, she concluded, “I miss that the most.”

BEN JOUBERT | KENTUCKY NEW ERA

People listen to a speaker talk before watching a video during a remembrance ceremony for the Battle of Fort Henry.

Visitors remember battle of Fort Henry

BY BENJAMIN JOUBERT
NEW ERA STAFF WRITER

It was 150 years ago that Fort Henry was lost to Union forces during the American Civil War. Some historians believe the loss of Fort Henry, and Fort Donelson on the Cumberland River, was why the South lost the war, said Bob Holliday, lead interpreter of The Homeplace at Land Between the Lakes.

On Saturday afternoon, people listened to a LBL volunteer talk about the battle and watched a video on the history of the event.

The fort was taken over as a consequence of its poor placement, said Sky Witzofsky, speaker at the event. Built on the water, rising tides and spring rain flooded the fort. Further, artillery fire punched holes in the fort causing additional damage and flooding.

The earthen fort, named after a Confederate senator, was built with trees around and inside it and had mud caked on the outside, Witzofsky said.

Very few died in the battle as most were sent away to Fort Donelson with only few left in order to surrender.

The battle lasted between 45 minutes to an hour and a half.

Less than a week later, Fort Donelson fell, opening up the Cumberland River to invading forces.

“It was a lynch pin for the North,” Holliday said. After the loss of both forts, “it was only a matter of time before (the South) lost the war.”

LBL will be holding events commemorating the fall of Fort Henry from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Feb. 12 and Feb. 19 at The Homeplace on the Tennessee side of the park. Admission is $4 for adults, $2 for children 12 and younger, and free for children 4-years-old and younger.

Notice To Our Advertisers

Counterfeit or fake checks are being used in a growing number of fraudulent schemes. Check overpayment scams target consumers selling cars or other valuable items through classified ads or online auction sites. Unsuspecting sellers get stuck when scammers pass off bogus cashiers checks, corporate checks, or personal checks. If you're selling something, don't accept a check for more than the selling price, no matter how tempting the offer or how convincing the story, especially if it is from an out of town buyer. Ask the buyer to write the check for the correct amount. If the buyer refuses to send the correct amount, return the check. Don't send the merchandise. If you think you've been targeted by a counterfeit check scam, report it to the Federal Trade Commission. Visit www.ftc.gov or call 1-877-872-4357 for more details or to report suspected fraud. This is a public service announcement brought to you by this newspaper.

Notice: New Free Ad Policy

The following are our Free Ad guidelines: Free ads will be limited to three (3) free ads per household per calendar month and are offered only for items that have been purchased for personal use and are no longer needed. Free ads are not available for homemade or home grown items, produce, pets or livestock, services, transportation or services offered. Ads submitted to our office on a free ad coupon (original coupon only, no photocopies) are limited to asking price of $100 or less. Ads submitted online at www.clickforads.com or www.kentuckynewera.com are limited to asking price that is $1000 or less. Both offers are limited to one item per ad and asking price must be included in ad. Free ads are run on a space available basis; we cannot guarantee a specific start date. Customer may cancel as soon as item sells. Free ad offer is for private party customers only, no business ads accepted.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

This year you open up to different perspectives. At the same time, you open up to different voices within you. You often wonder which voice to listen to — the cool, logical one, or the emotional, passionate humming in your mind. Through experiencing the end results and possibilities of both approaches, you will know what works best for you. If you are single, your desirability is unquestionable. Forming a long-term, stable relationship could test your ability to relate. If you are attached, do remember that it takes two to make a relationship work. Be less ego-driven. LEO often cares about what you do but approaches these comparable concerns differently.

A baby born today after 5:24 a.m. (PST) has a Sun in Aquarius and a Moon in Leo. Before that time, the Moon is in Cancer.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ You have a lot of bottled-up creativity. You might be somewhat reticent to let it come out. Don't be. Your ingenuity can forge interesting ideas, make a project work and/or solve a personal matter. Lose the word "no" from your vocabulary. Tonight: Let this same energy flow into the night.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★ Could you be restricting your thinking? Consider the possibility. Instead of slamming doors shut or thinking in either/or terms, make a situation possible. Often, choices are self-imposed. You can do what you want and please someone else. Tonight: Cocoon a little.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ Keep doors open, and continue to encourage a conversation. You might not agree with a loved one, nor do you need to. Respect where this person is coming from and understand your long-term goals for the two of you, and you won't encounter any problems. Tonight: Hanging out is fun to do.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★ Issues surrounding funds or a financial matter come up, forcing some thought and decision-making. You alone know your limits, but perhaps you don't see the possibilities. Find a money guru or friend you respect and get some feedback. You might be taken back by everything that is going on. Tonight: Treat yourself well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ You might want to think through an idea that works well for you. Don't let your morning mood float into your day. You can accomplish what you want, even if that looks like a relaxing day. It is in you; it can happen. Tonight: Where the fun is.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★ Assuming a low profile might feel good and gives you time to think and evaluate. You might not like everything that you hear, but it will be OK. When there is no response, others will spill the beans, maybe more slowly than desired. Detach and observe. Tonight: Take some much-needed time for yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Once you get past a problem, you will be off dealing with a new possibility. You beam, and others respond. Your understanding opens up a new set of possibilities. Zero in on what you want. Another person's unpredictability marks a decision. Tonight: Where people are.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ You are on top of your game. Listen to what is happening within your immediate circle. You also might want to note others' motivation. They might not be coming from where you are coming from. Listen to a suggestion. Tonight: Late, late, late.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Impulsiveness often draws mixed results, yet this afternoon it could draw exactly what you desire. Do nothing halfway, and remain realistic about your limitations. Your energy and optimism determine the end results. Tonight: The only answer is yes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ You think in terms of success through employing another approach. You might wonder why you often get a certain result. Remain sensitive to a family member who could be acting in an erratic manner right now. You see another person in a new light. Tonight: Go along with a loved one's desires.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ When everyone starts acting on his or her desires, you start smiling. You like unpredictability, which you seem to be drawing into your life right now. Establishing limits might be important, too. Tonight: You, too, can be spontaneous.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ Pace yourself, knowing the limits of a situation and your energy. A partner could be having a case of the blues. Be supportive without being overly indulgent. You will get excellent results. The unexpected occurs financially. Choose to take risks carefully. Tonight: Whatever works for you.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

The Full Moon on your birthday signals a very lively year with a lot of interpersonal interaction. If you are single and you can stay light and easy, you'll discover how fun dating can be. A loved one who is a foreigner or at a distance might be distancing him- or herself even more. If you care, rope this person in! If you are attached, more often than not you will see that your sweetie offers a whole different perspective. Learn to understand his or her logic. Travel and accepting different styles might not come easily for you. Give these areas of your life a break. LEO can push your buttons!

A baby born today has a Sun in Aquarius and a Moon in Leo.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ Just as you believed you finally got past a problem, you come to a realization — you might not have cleared up the issue. Confusion surrounds the best of intentions. Push could come to shove if you are too confrontational. Tonight: Do your thing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ You hear good news and want to share it. Use care when speaking to others. Some people cannot help but be jealous. Stay on top of your demands. Pressure builds if you don't take care of yourself. Tonight: Stay close to home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ You are juggling more than your fair share of work and other issues. You could be very tired and drawn from dealing with a child or loved one. Don't let someone else interfere with your plans, though you'll have to do some juggling. Tonight: Fun and games.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ You could be taken back by what another person shares. It could cause a problem, as you know too much and it might affect your attitude. Stay on top of a changeable situation. Juggle your way through an increasingly tense matter. Tonight: Treat time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ If you can accept some dissent around you, you should fare well, because ultimately your insights will point to the correct direction. You wonder what is happening behind the scenes with someone who withholds a lot. Only you can figure it out for sure. Listen to a child or someone who is conflicted, and help this person understand what is going on within him or her. Tonight: All smiles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Remain sensitive to your inner thought process. How you handle a situation and your choices point to the correct solution. Don't depend on anyone else. Count on you, and only you. Let laughter happen. Tonight: Play it easy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ No one is harder on you than you are on yourself. You wonder why you treat yourself as you do and what might be the appropriate solution. A friend or several people in a meeting try to nudge you forward. Still, ultimately it is your call. Tonight: Catch up on a friend's news.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ You could feel pushed to the max. You wonder how to take some of the pressure off yourself. You might be surprised by how easy it is to enlist people's help. Do it more often, and smile more often! Tonight: In the limelight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ You naturally respond to the innate ups and downs of the day. You could be asking a lot of questions. But somehow you are able to handle what few can. A friendship causes a problem when you least expect it. It could take a while to resolve the issue. Tonight: Let your imagination rock and roll.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ Juggling a financial matter — as you well know — could backfire. You handle funds better than most. Why challenge your wisdom and perhaps luck? Others observe your reactions with care. Tonight: Indulge a loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ Clearly you want what you want. The issue remains what to do about a situation that is close to your heart and that could be somewhat provocative. Your sign is well known for its unpredictability. You prove it once more! Tonight: Toss yourself into living.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ You have a personal matter on your mind that takes you away from others. You could think that something is off or missing in a key day-to-day matter. Don't react; simply figure it out. A partner expresses his or her dismay at not having you more present. Tonight: Easy works.
